Theory Advanced in Case of Miss Margaret Goodwin, Supposedly Stabbed in Sleep

HUNT EX-FARM EMPLOYE

Accident is the theory advanced by the city and State police who are inrestigating the mysterious injury reseired by Miss Margaret Goodwin, the Germantown school teacher, who was supposedly attacked while asleep on a in Contesville early yesterday

pointed out that the cut on her head may have been caused by a fail from the hammock in which she was sleeping, but there are many features which make this theory an unlikely Police are making a round-up of all the Negroes in Boxtown, a settlement near Coatesville. This is being done in an effort to capture Elmer Cunningham and John Brewer, whom they wish to question regarding the attack. The Negroes are former employes of the Misses Finn, who operate the farm where the attack occurred, and are said to nurse grudges against their former employers.

Corporal Smith, of the State police. who is heading the investigation, is faced by a total lack of motive for any tack on Miss Goodwin and is becoming more and more convinced of the accident theory. Questioning last night brought out the fact that Miss dwin was a victim of somnambulism in her early teens and that an uncle as afflicted with it in a pronounced

A slight possibility of accident also was seen today with the discovery that there was directly beneath the head of there was directly beneath the head of the hammock an iron projection of the suspending framework. No trace of blood, however, was discovered on this projection, and the attending physician stated it as his opinion that this would not have resulted from Miss Goodwin having fallen from her couch and striking this exposed point.

The veranda on which Miss Goodwin last and where she had been accusalept and where she had been accustomed to sleeping during pleasant nights since her arrival at the Willows a fortnight ago, has no railing. Walking in her sleep, it is pointed out, she might have stepped off to a two-foot drop to the ground. Though on a short fall, such a drop during sleep would have resulted in a severe shock, a jagged stump near the porch, although revealing no marks of blood, might have eccasioned such a gash over the left temple as Miss Goodwin received. GIRL BANDITS ROB

Pair Stuff Suitcases While Third Keeps West Girard Avenue Clerk Busy

Three pretty girls, between eighteen and twenty years old, modestly dressed in light summer frocks, turned bandit Monday and robbed the store of A. Reppaport, 160 West Girard avenue, of $80 worth of dresses. The case, was made public today by police.

The girls entered the store at 2 clock in the afternoon. A girl clerk was alone in the store. One of the visiors approached her and said she would like to see some dresses.

A number of filmy summer frocks were taken down from their racks for her selection. She and her friends looked them over carefully, discussing their various merits, and at length she picked out one which she said she would tree.

woman to the dressing room, at the rear of the store, leaving the other two young women alone. They had suitcases with them, and, while the clerk and her "customer" were gone, made good use of their time to fill them with everything they could reach and cram in

The young woman who had gone to try on the suit delayed long enough to give her confederates ample time to complete their work, then exercised her woman's prerogative and told the girl clerk she did not think she liked the wit after all. Her friends were waiting for her when she returned, and they politely took their leave. They managed to carry the suitcases jauntily, and not a if they were heavy with stolen goods. The clerk's suspicions were first aroused when she saw the three young women get into a motorcar standing nearby. There seemed to be a bit too much haste in the way they entered the machine, and she looked around the store to see if anything was missing. A glance showed that the dress racks had the car, or notice whether the girls had man chauffeur or were driving the car hemselves.

Police of the Front and Master treets station, who are looking for the hree young women, believe they are members of a gang which had perpe-trated several other robberies of a
